

Saved Searches and Alerts

It is not possible to migrate individual users' searches and alerts to the new provision of these databases in HDAS. Additionally there will be some differences between the new ProQuest and previous OVID search and limit fields, meaning that not all search strings can be replicated exactly. The search strings will need to be manually replicated when the full ProQuest feed is live. Users will also not receive any alerts during this period.

Users should also be aware that the search strings for any required saved searches or alerts for Medline and PsycINFO, held on the Ovid SP platform, will also need to be saved by 31 March 2015 as these cannot be migrated to HDAS or the ProQuest interface.

If you want to keep your saved searches and alerts you must follow these instructions. This includes saved searches and alerts for Medline and PsycINFO, both individually AND combined with other databases in HDAS. Saved searches and alerts which you wish to keep must be individually downloaded before 31 March 2015. The search strings will need to be manually replicated when the full ProQuest feed is live and implemented into HDAS after July 2015.
